

LORI DOWNEY

Lori Downey specializes in the skills associated with effective communication; namely constructing and delivering key-message presentations, presentation skills refinement, business writing and effective interpersonal/interdepartmental interaction and collaboration.

Since 1991, she has developed and delivered a variety of programs designed to address the specific needs of clients, primarily with an objective of improving oral and written communication, while improving group dynamics in a collaborative environment.

Lori has taught in Canada at a variety of institutions, including the University of Manitoba, the University of Winnipeg, and the University of Victoria. As well, she has worked extensively with the Manitoba provincial government developing and delivering workshops in communication, time management, meeting effectiveness and stress management. Internationally, she has worked on projects in Malaysia to improve oral and written communications skills.

Lori presently is an instructor of presentation skills at Royal Roads University and a sessional instructor in the Faculty of Education at the University of Victoria. Her expertise in curriculum development ensures that all her workshops are results-oriented and designed to meet the varying needs of the participants.

Lori holds a Masters of Education Degree from the University of Calgary in Curriculum Development and Instruction, and a Bachelor Degree in Education from the University of Alberta.
